The Billiard Bar

The Billiard Room was built in 1883, with the rest of the original house. The windows overhead once lit the Billiard table which was used and enjoyed by the Godman family. They now illuminate our beautiful Murano glass chandeliers which were designed to represent our Italian heritage.

When the house became a hotel in 1985, The Billiard Room became a private dining suite. It was used for weddings and meetings right up until 2008 when it was then redesigned as a bar. The former Library Bar then became an extension of The Camellia Restaurant.

Our current bar and menu blends the heritage of this beautiful room with the trends and styles of bar-goers of today. The cocktail menu offers a journey through South Lodge History whilst the remainder of the drinks selection aims to show off our array of spirits, liquors and other drinks.

The team are always on hand to offer recommendations on food and drink. But their main purpose is to make your stay as comfortable and as enjoyable as possible.

Weight and Measures Act 1985
Gin, Rum, Vodka and Whisky are offered for sale and consumption on these premises in quantities of 50ml or multiples there of. 25ml measures are available on request. Fortified wines are offered for sale and consumption in quantities in 70ml

Also known as Special or Deluxe Cuvées, Vintage Champagnes are of the highest quality. These select bottles are widely considered to be the best wine that France has to offer, regardless of the price. A typical Prestige Cuvée must be made entirely from the same year and the blend is often restricted to the exclusive "Grand Crus," a classification indicating the vineyard's quality.

Rosé Champagne

Champagne rosé is predominantly produced one of two ways: by blending a little red wine with the white champagne, or by allowing the macerated skins of black grapes to come into contact with the wine, which gives it a "pinky" colour. Rosés tend to be less acidic than traditional champagnes, and are noted for their delicate, floral, fruity style.
